Learning you have breast cancer can be frightening and overwhelming. Your doctors, nurses and other care providers are there to help, but it can be hard to process all the information you're receiving and make choices about your care and treatment.

The Hospital of Central Connecticut's Breast Nurse Navigator is here for you. A registered nurse with breast cancer expertise, the Navigator can help you understand your diagnosis and treatment, and provide moral support when you need it most. Our Breast Nurse Navigator can:

- Educate you and your loved ones about your individual cancer diagnosis and treatment options
- Help you make informed decisions about your treatment and care
- Advocate for you during treatment
- Coordinate the team of physicians, nurses and other healthcare professionals providing your care
- Help you with your recovery and rehabilitation plans
- Provide moral support and a sympathetic ear

Your Breast Nurse Navigator is available, one-on-one, to help answer your questions, explain your options, or just listen.

Your doctor may refer you to the Breast Nurse Navigator, or you can call the Navigator at 860-224-5900, X6307.
