

The perfect wedding...

Right down to the knees.

When Rebecca Bowman got married in July, she had much in common with her wedding party, which included her dad, George Kanupka, and twin bridesmaids Monica and Nicole Webb. In addition to beautiful outfits and flowers, all four walked down the aisle on knees that were surgically repaired at The Hospital of Central Connecticut due to athletic injuries.

The hospital's advanced orthopedic services range from outpatient surgeries like the wedding party's to total knee and hip replacements at our new Center for Joint Care. The Center features private rooms, and a comprehensive program that guides you from pre-surgery through recovery. Along with accomplished physicians and outstanding staff. To learn more about our orthopedic services, please call (860) 224-5186.
